THERE was a fair attendance at Chiarini's Circus last evening, the night being beautifully fine. We noticed H. On the day of the tragedy he sailed from Northwall for Swansea at 7.30 p.m., or ten minutes before the tragedy-occurred, consequently he could not be one of the assassins. Some of his friends were with him at Northwall an hour before the vessel sailed. LONDON, July 3 1st. In the House of Lords this afternoon, on a motion to go into Committee on the Arrears of Rent bill, the Earlof Camperdown (Liberal); asked some assurance that no further important changes relative to contracts between landlord and tenant should be proposed. Lord Carlingford, Lord of the Drivy Scal, said he could answer affirmatively. The present bill, he said was not a precedent for changes in the Land Act. The Marquis of Salisbury moved an amendment which would be that the landlord could refuse his consent to tenants applying for relief under the bill in cases where he disbelieved in the tenant's inability to pay.

- Lord-Carlingford-opposed the amendment. He said the result would be to utterly stultify the Government's land legislation.

The Marquis of Landsdowne (Liberal), and Lord Derby (Liberal-Conservative), opposed the amendment. Viscount Cranbrook, a Conservative, declared that the Government ought to give some evidence that it would satisfy Ireland, which all previous concessions had failed to do. Blood-stained Ireland, he said, should be subject to law and order instead of sub-Commissioners. Lord Selborne, the Lord High Chancellor, relied to Viscount Crambrook. Salisbury's amendment was adopted by a vote
